Source Acknowledgment

This collection draws inspiration from historic natural history illustrations preserved in the public domain. We gratefully acknowledge the Biodiversity Heritage Library (BHL) and its global consortium of partner libraries for digitizing and providing access to these historic works.

Illustrations in this series were curated from several classic natural history publications, including:

The Birds of Europe (Vols. 1-5)

The Birds of North America (Studer)

Histoire naturelle des oiseaux d'Afrique

Digital scans of these historic publications were accessed through the Biodiversity Heritage Library. Contributing institutions to the BHL consortium include organizations such as the Smithsonian Institution Libraries, University of Toronto Libraries, the American Museum of Natural History Library, and the University of Illinois Library.

Legal Disclaimer

The original illustrations reproduced in this publication are believed to be in the public domain due to their date of publication (pre-1929). This publication is an independent work and is not affiliated with, sponsored by, or endorsed by the Biodiversity Heritage Library (BHL) or its partner institutions.

While the original source illustrations are in the public domain, the specific artistic adaptations, digital enhancements, line-art conversions, page layouts, and compilation presented in this book are the intellectual property of Quiet Line Press © 2026.

The public-domain source illustrations may be freely used. However, the edited versions, design, and compilation contained in this publication may not be reproduced or distributed in whole or in part without prior written permission from Quiet Line Press.

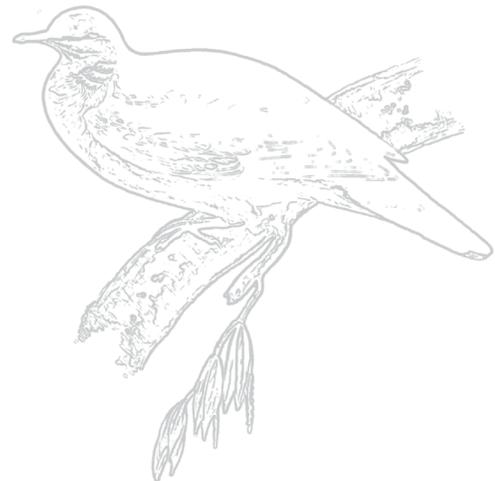

All source imagery was curated and refined through the Quiet Line Press digital distillation process
